Accident Support Services International Ltd. (ASSI) enters Agreement with the Gananoque Police Service for collision records management through CROMS (Collision Reporting & Occurrence Management System)

January 25, 2011 – The Gananoque Police Service and Accident Support Services International Ltd., facilitators of Collision Reporting to the Insurance Industry, are pleased to announce an Agreement for Electronic Collision Records Management using ASSI's Microsoft award winning Collision Reporting & Occurrence Management System 'CROMS' including the CROMS Analytics Portal. The Service will also be assessing the best way to implement CROMS Mobile, for complete electronic collision reporting in-car at the scene of the collision.

The Gananoque Police will continue to investigate all collisions at the scene. ASSI will promptly data-enter this information at no cost to Police

Because of this partnership, Police will have access to collision data and reports from Gananoque electronically. Using CROMS as their collision database, the Gananoque Police Service will have the opportunity to immediately analyze all information captured in a collision report by creating queries based on any field on the official collision report. Police can identify what is causing collisions by analyzing driver actions. They will be able to identify problem areas and times where a disproportionate number of collisions are occurring, and set up proactive enforcement, using this intelligence to make Gananoque's roads safer for all users.

Chief Liu says "At no cost to the police, with CROMS analytical reports we will be able to use the information gathered as an important tool to help make our streets safer."

When the Gananoque Police implement CROMS Mobile, they will be able to complete electronic collision reports in their vehicle, right at the scene of the collision, increasing their efficiency.

The Gananoque Police Service joins 33 other Police Services using CROMS, which includes 19 using Collision Reporting Centres, and 14 Police Services using CROMS as their electronic Records Management System as well.
